Sergeaunt at Law, to the gentle Reader.

Ere haue ye (gentle Readers) a Collection of all the Statutes of Englande (from the beginninge of Magna Charta, vnto this yeare of our Lord God 1579) which were before thys yere imprinted, and which be now in force and effect.

All the printed Statutes expired or repealed, or concerning priuat persons, or some priuat places, I haue left out of this worke, sauing that of them I haue made in their apt titles (as I thinke) a briefe remembrance.

The residue of all the Statutes imprinted haue I put in this worke (as I suppose) in their apt titles woord for woord, as they be in the great Statutes: onely leauing out, as well certeine superfluous woordes, as also the most part of the preambles, for that I feared, that if I should haue put in all the preambles, this booke would haue growen so bigge and so thicke, that it would not haue bene conteyned in this volume. Neuertheles I haue (I trust) put in those preambles, without which the body of the Statutes cannot be well perceyued.

But yet trust not, that all the Statues that I haue put at large in this booke, do stande in force, for percase some of them be repealed by other statutes made after, by special or general woords which for lacke of leasure I could not thoroughly consider. I haue noted in the Margent of euery statute certeine woordes, and that for three causes.

The first, for that, that many of the statutes be long, and contayne many seuerall matters, of which percase ye would many times gladly, shortly finde out some one (without tediousnes, or spending of the time in reading ouer the whole statute) therefore by perusing the woordes in the Margent, ye may quickelie conceyue, what matters be in that statute, whereby ye may readelie finde out, the matter that ye would read of in that statute.

The ſecond cauſe is, that the wordes in the Margent well conſidered, ſhall ſtande you in as good ſteede, as ſhould a ſpeciall Calender.

The third cauſe is, becauſe that many Statutes conteine diuers matters, that neceſſarylie were to be put in diuers ſeuerall Titles apt for thoſe ſeuerall matters, and ſo ſhould dyuers matters aptly be put in this booke twiſe or thriſe, or percaſe in mo places in their dyuers apt Titles, were it not that then this booke would haue bene to bigge, therefore the woordes in the Margent, do ſhortlie ſhewe you thoſe ſeuerall matters apt for other Tytles.

Note that the woordes in the ſmale letter within the Parentheſes ( ) be not the woordes of the Statute, but my woordes planted in there, for the better vnderſtanding of the Statute.

And although I haue put the Statutes here at large, yet will I aduiſe euery ſuch of you, as ſhall haue any matter of importance, concerning any Statute in this booke, not to truſt altogether to this booke: But read you ouer diligently the Act wyth the Preamble thereof, in the great booke of Statutes, out of which I tooke this. This aduiſe I geue you for two cauſes. The one, for that, that reading the Preamble with the Statute, yt ſhall many times geue you much light for the true vnderſtanding of the Statute: where if yee read the Statute in this booke without the Preamble the vnderſtanding of the Statute may be to you oft time confuſed. The other cauſe is, for that, that perhaps diuers faults be eſcaped in this woorke, ſome for lacke of diligence of the Printer, and ſome by my default, for lacke of leyſure to conſider, and aduiſedly to peruſe and ouerſee thys woorke after I had finiſhed it.

Note alſo that in thende of euery referment of the two Tables you ſhall finde two letters A. and B. which ſignifie the firſt and ſeconde pages of the leafe.

Vale.

Borne ouer sea.

2 ¶ Because that some people be in doubt of the children borne in the parties beyond the sea out of the kinges lyegeance of England, shoulde be able to demaund any inheritance within the same liegeance or not, wherof a petition was put into the parliament late holden at westminster, the xviij. yeare of the reigne of our souereigne lord the king that nowe is, and was not at the same time wholly assented. Our souereigne lorde the king, willinge that all doubts and ambiguities should be put away, and the lawe in this case declared, and put in a certaintie, hath charged the saide prelates, Earls, Barons, & other wyse men of his councell assembled in this parliament, to deliberate vpon this pointe: which of one assent haue said that the lawe of the crowne of England is, and alwayes hath beene such, that the children of the kings of England in what soeuer parties they shalbee borne, in England or els where, be able & owe to beare thinheritance after the death of their auncestors: which lawe our said souereigne lord the king, the said prelats, Earles, Barons, & other great men, and all the commons assembled in this parliament, doe approue and affirme for euer. And in the right of other children borne out of the liegeance of Englande, in the time of our souereigne lord the king also they be of one mynd accorded, that Henry sonne of John de Beaumonde, Elizabeth, daughter of Guy de Braine, and Giles sonne of Raufe Dawbeney, & others which the kinge will name, which were borne beyond the sea, out of the liegeance of England shalbe frō hēceforth able to haue and enioy their inheritance after the death of their auncestours, in all parties within the liegeance of England, as wel as those that should be borne within the saide liegeance of England. And þ al children inheritable, which from hencefoorth shalbe borne out of the liegeance of þ kyng, whose fathers and mothers at the time of the birth be & shalbe at the faith & of þ liegeance of þ king of England, shall haue and enioy the same benefites and auauntages, to haue and beare inheritance within the same liegeance, as the other inheritours aforesaid in time to come, so alwayes that the mothers of such children doe passe the seas by the licence & willes of their husbāds. And if it be alleaged against any such borne beyond the sea, þ he is bastard, in case where þ bishop ought to haue conisans of bastardy, it shall be cōmanded to the bishop of þ place where the land demaunded is, to certifie the kings courte, where the plea therof hangeth, as of olde times hath ben vsed in the case of bastardie, alleged against thē which were borne in Englād. 25, E, 3. BEcause many great men of England (which haue infeffed knights & their freeholders of smal tenemēts in their great maners) haue cōplayned, that they can not haue profit of ẏ residue of theire maners, as of wast woodes and pastures, because ẏ sāe feffees ought to haue sufficiēt pasture according to their holde. Thus it is prouided and graunted that when so euer such feffees do bring an assise of

of nouel disseisi for their comō of pas ture. And it is knowledged before ỳ iustices, ỳ they haue asmuch pasture as suffiseth to their hold, & that they haue free egresse & regresse frō their land vnto the pasture: then lett them be cōtented therewith, & they on whō it was complained, shal goe quite of as much as they haue made their pro fite of their lands wast, woodes and pastures. And if they alledge ỳ they haue not sufficiēt pasture, or sufficiēt egresse & regresse according to theire hold, than let ỳ truth be inquired by assise, And if it be foūd by the assise, ỳ ỳ sāe deforceors haue disturbed thē of their egresse or regresse in any thig, or that they had not sufficiēt pasture (as before is said) then shal they reco uer their seysin by vew of the inquest so ỳ by their discretion & othe ỳ plain tiffes shal haue sufficient pasture and sufficient egresse & regresse in forme aforesaid. And the disseisors shalbe a merced, & shal yeld damages as they were wont before this prouisiō. 10 ¶ Our soueraign lord the king, by the greeuous complaynt of hys cõmons, considering the great mischiefes had within the realme, & yet not remedied, and also the great damage & dishenheritance ỳ cõmeth by the vsual periury of iurrours, empanelled in ẽquestz, aswel in ỳ courtz of our soueraigne lord the king, as of other, the whych periury haboũdeth & encreaseth dayly more then it was wont, for the great giftes that such iurrours take of the parties in pleas sued in the sayd courtes, insomuch that the greater partie of people that haue to sue in the sayd courtes, leue their suites for the mischief aforesaid, and namely for cause of the delayes ỳ be in the writs of attaintes, for ỳ in times past in writtes of attayntes when the graund iurie had appeared in court, and were readie to pas, one of the tenaunts or defendauntz or of ỳ petit iurrours named in such writs sometime haue pleaded false & fayne pleas which were not triable by the graund iury of ỳ attaint, & by ỳ cause delayed the taking of such graũd iuries till such pleas were tried: And after such pleas tried & found for the plaintife an other of the iurrours tenaunts or defendants myght pleade an other such false and faint plea after the last contynuance in the same attaints. And so euery of the defendants iurrours or tenaunts after other might plead such false and faint plee, & delay the graund iury whẽ it was ready to passe. And though ỳ al such false & faint plees were foũd against them which pleaded, no peyn was geeuen to them by the common law. For cause of which delayes the graũd iuries in attaints haue beene greuously vexed & trauayled, and the plaintifs in such attayntes put to so great costs & therby impouerished, ỳ they might not sue forth their sayd suites, wherefore the iurrours be the more incouraged to be periured and make their false othes in such cases: Our said soueraign lord ỳ king willing vpon ỳ to prouide remedy at the request of the said cõmõs and by the assent of the lords abouesaid, hath ordeined & stablished ỳ ỳ parties plaintifes in all such attaintes shall recouer their damages and costs against al such tenants, iurrours, and defendaunts, which they haue sustained in ỳ behalfe. But I put those three statutes here at large because I thinke they were made to bee of effect but onely for those kinges times in which they were made. For if the statut of 7. H.7.ca.1. were to bee of effecte in an other kings time, then was it in vaine to make the statute of 3. H.8.ca.5. or the statut of 2. E.6.c.2, for they shall be of like effect, saving ỹ matter of souldioures should not sell nor give their horses and harnes, is more in.2. E.6.c.8. then is in the other tiue former statutes. Wa men quere diligenter whether these iii. statutes or any of them were or be effectuall in other kinges times after.

But in case where the husband leeseth it by defaute the lande beeinge in demaund, and the wife after the death of her husbande, demaundeth her dower, it hath beene seene that some Iusticers haue awarded vnto the woman her dower notwithstandinge the default which her husbande made, other Iusticers beeing of the contrarie opinion, and iudginge otherwyse. To the intent that from henceforth such ambiguitie shalbe taken away and put in certaine: It is prouided, that in both cases, the woman demaundinge her dower shalbee heard. And if it be alleged against her, that her husbande lost the land, whereof the dower is demaunded by iudgment, whereby she ought not to haue dower, and then it bee inquired by what iudgement, and it be found that it was by defaut vnto the tenaunt must answere: then it behoueth him to answere further, and to shewe that hee had rightes, and hath in the forsayd lande according to the fourme of the writ, that the tenant before purchased against the husband. And if hee cannot shewe, that the husbande of such wife had no right in the lands, nor none other but hee, the tenaunt shal be quite, and the wife shal recouer naught of her dower, which thing if he can not shewe, the wife shal recouer her dower. And if they haue a warrantie, when ẏ warrantour hath warranted, the plea shall passe betwene him that is seysed and the warrantour according to the tenor of the writte, that the tenaunt purchased before, and by which hee recouered by defaut, and so from many accions at length they shal resorte to one iudgment, which is this, that either the demandaũts shal recouer their demaund or the tenaunts shall goe quite. And if the accion of such a tenaunt, which is compelled to shew his right be moued by a writt of right, though ẏ the greate assise or battayle can not be feigned by the wordes accustomed, yet it shalbee feygned by wordes conuenient & vsed, for when ẏ tenant in ẏ that he sheweth his right which belongeth to hym by the writte that hee before purchased in steede of a demaundaunt, the warrantour maye well defende the right of the tenant, which commeth in place of the demandant as before is said and alledge the seisin of his auncestour, & to defende it by the body of a freeman or put him selfe in the greate assise, & praye recognisaunce to bee made therof whether hee hath more righte to the land being in demaunde, or else ẏ party beefore named, or it may bee ioined otherwise by the great assise: and so ẏ warrantour may defende the ryghte, and knowleged the seisin of his auncestour, and put him selfe in the greate assise &c. and praie recognisance to bee made, whether hee hath more right in the forsaid land, as in that whereof hee infeoffed such a man, or that such a one released and quited clayme, &c. or else the aforesaid partie &c. And where sometime it chaunceth that a woman which is not endowed of the land of an heire beeing within age, doth purchase a writ of dower against a gardeine, & the gardein endoweth the land by fauour, or maketh default, or by collusion defendethe the plea so faintlye, whereby the wife is awarded her dower in preiudice of the heire: It is prouided, that the heire, when hee cometh to full age, shall haue an accion to demaund ẏ seisin of his auncestor against his wife like as he should haue against any other defendour. Prouided alwais ẏ the wife shal haue her exception saued against the demaundaunt, to shew that she had right to her dower, which if shee can shewe, shee shal goe quyte and retaine her dower, and the heire shalbee greeuously amerced, according to the discretion of the Justicers. And if not, the heir shal recouer his demaũd &c. In like manner the wyfe shalbee ayded, if the heire or any other do impleade her for her dower, and if shee lese her dower by defaut, in which case ẏ defaut shal not be so preiudicial to her but that shee shall recouer her dower, if shee haue right thereto, and shee shal haue this writ.

And the cause wherefore such solempnities ought to be done in a fine is because a fine is so high a barre of so great force, & of so strong nature in him selfe, that it concludeth not only such as be parties and priuies there to & their heires, but al other people of the world, being of full age, out of prison, of good memory, and with in the lower seas, the day of the fine leuied, if they make not their claime of their action vpon a yere & a day by the coūtrey.
